

Office of Strategic Partnerships & Intergovernmental Affairs (SPIGA)

About the organization

The Peace Corps is an independent U.S. Government agency, founded by President John F. Kennedy in 1961. The Peace Corps Mission is to promote world peace and friendship by fulfilling three goals: To help the people of interested countries in meeting their need for trained men and women. To help promote a better understanding of Americans on the part of the peoples served. For more than five decades, Peace Corps Volunteers in 140 countries have demonstrated ingenuity, creativity, and grit to solve critical challenges alongside community leaders.

About the Office

The Office of Strategic Partnerships and Intergovernmental Affairs (SPIGA) has a mission to coordinate and oversee the development and implementation of strategic partnerships and relationships to support the agency's three goals and enhance programs through every stage of the Volunteer life cycle. At the core of our mission is an emphasis on developing initiatives that support, enhance and sustain projects developed by Peace Corps volunteers in the field.

Strategic partnerships bring a variety of resources to the Agency, including placement opportunities for Volunteers, technical staff at headquarters, training resources at post, and career opportunities for returned Volunteers. Our office promotes, develops, and manages the Peace Corps' partnerships with U.S. Government agencies, international non-governmental organizations, multilateral institutions, and corporations. We work with global strategic partners, donors and collaborators to increase the reach and impact of Volunteers in the field in support of common goals and national initiatives, and to support Volunteers across a lifetime of service.
